

Memoir advises women to stop thinking about romantic future, start thinking like men

DJ Johnson explains the fun and exciting side of the single life for women in “Why Should Men Have All the Fun?”

ATLANTA – For years, the social standard of marriage was considered the culmination of one’s relationship status. The journey has been perceived differently by members of the opposite sex. Adopting the opposite sex’s point of view, D. J. Johnson explains to women everywhere that dating doesn’t always have to be serious in “Why Should Men Have All the Fun?” (ISBN 1463762844).

It has been a running joke for years that men and women approaching dating, marriage and relationships in general much differently. Men tend to have a more casual point of view on the future of a relationship, even dating more than one person at a time, while women can picture themselves with an individual from the very first date. These conflicting attitudes can lead to a frustrating, difficult and even lonely time for women with this mindset. Johnson attempts to persuade women to the typically-male approach to dating and the idea of leaving the future right where it is.

Some experts feel that past social norms and gender relations have caused women to be preprogrammed to want marriage. Johnson asks a very serious question about what happens when a woman, despite her best efforts, isn’t able to find her storybook ending and Prince Charming? With women outnumbering men in the United States, a margin that is still widening, the reality that not all women will get married is a growing possibility.

Johnson has a personal connection to the content of this book. After a failed relationship and seeing all the self-help books were designed to help find Mr. Right, she wanted to suggest to women that being single can be fun and offer a positive perspective on the single life.

“When the relationship that I expected to end with marriage ended in a break up, I decided to evaluate my dating patterns. I talked with many of my male friends and watched many of their dating habits. It appeared to me as if they were having more fun with dating. I was approaching it as a job or career and I noticed that there were many women that approached dating in a similar way,” Johnson says.

Johnson gives practical advice topped with a positive and humorous tone. She wants her readers to realize that there is a life without marriage, and she encourages her readers to see the freedom and the adventures that the single life can create.

“Why Should Men Have All the Fun?” is available for sale online at Amazon.com and other channels.

About the Author:

DJ Johnson received her Bachelor of Applied Arts in Interior Design from The American College in Atlanta. She started Studio 109 Designs from her downtown loft in 1992 while working as a property manager for support funding. Johnson has managed numerous multi-million dollar assets in 10 major housing markets across the country. Currently, Johnson is traveling abroad while working on her second book.

MEDIA CONTACT

DJ Johnson

Email: DJ@whyshouldmenhaveallthefun.com

Phone: (678) 640-6648

Website: www.whyshouldmenhaveallthefun.com

REVIEW COPIES AND INTERVIEWS ARE AVAILABLE

###